Why use a comeback?

All of us have to deal with difficult people in our lives at some point in time. There are annoying and difficult people everywhere. Think about it; someone has to be related to and work with these people!

Our comebacks are for verbal bullies who are hitting you over the head with their words. The point of using comebacks is to let someone know that it is not OK to trample all over you or your feelings. If someone makes an off comment once, it really isn't a big deal; you can let it go. If a person keeps making insulting comments to you continually and publicly, it is time to let them know that is not OK to speak to you in such a way. Maya Angelou famously said, "You teach people how to treat you."

Sure, it can be scary standing up to someone or letting someone know that they can't talk to you disrespectfully. That's what these comebacks are for, a kind of a verbal smackdown to let the individual know that you are you not going to put up with their crap anymore.

Some folks may suggest that you sit down and spell it out for the person or go into the details of how they are hurting your feelings. When someone is publicly embarrassing you, it is all about control and power. Whoever that is treating you inappropriately knows that it is not OK, so explaining that to them, probably isn't going to help the situation. Manipulators will often turn the situation around and tell you that you are having it imagined it, and you are too sensitive. They will say they weren't rude at all, and you need to stop being so insecure.

Bullies usually target people who they think won't respond. Once they know that you are aren't going to put up with their nasty behaviour, they will move on to someone else. Once the bully has been shut down in front of other people, they probably won't come at you again. And if they do, comebacks can be escalated.

A friend of mine told me that she had an old roommate who loved to go on about how big her breasts were. Laura would mention how massive her boobs were, in front of mixed company, and point how small her roommate's chest was in comparison.

One day, Laura asked the roommate if her breasts looked too big in the striped shirt she was wearing. My friend said, "No, but I think they would look less saggy in another shirt." After that, Laura never mentioned her big boobs again. Having a taste of her mean, shameful behaviour, shut Laura up for good.

When someone has been rude and publicly disrespectful to you, most likely they are not someone that you would want to keep in your life. If they are a relative, you can probably distance yourself from them by not talking to them for long at family events. If possible, I always try to preserve the relationship and at least keep lines of communication open. Who knows, things may pass, and the relationship may get better over time.

I always try to think of preserving my energy and saving it for important things I need to do. I use the comebacks to let someone know that they need to back off and leave me alone, but I try not to dwell on negative situations. The more you give your attention to the negative, the bigger it can appear.

Some folks are always looking for a fight, and waste years of their life being insulted by every little thing. This kind of individual would argue with a fence post, remember you don't have to attend every argument that you are invited to. If someone tries to drag you into their drama, just use a comeback and then move on. Don't give the negative person your mindshare or energy, because you have more important things to do with your life!
How to use the comebacks

Our website constantly receives emails from people who tell us that using the comebacks has helped them out, and the person who has been giving them a hard time has stopped insulting them. Usually, it only takes one or two comebacks used in front of other people to shut the negative person up for good.

When you are using the comebacks with family or good friends, try to use a gentler comeback to start, this is with the intention to let the person know that they need to back off. Start off gently, and if they keep bothering you move on to a stronger comeback. Have a plan in place, and pick out four comebacks from the book that you plan to use on the person, that matches the situation.

Using comebacks at work depends a lot on where you work. If you work on a construction site with a bunch of guys who use rude language, then most of the comebacks in this book will probably be OK. If you work in an office and you let a few of these comebacks rip you may be called into the HR office immediately. If you don’t want to lose your job, and I assume that you don’t, you can use a few comebacks that aren’t rude, said in a joking manner.

One thing that you can do is be prepared for a verbal bully. Go through the book and pick a few good comebacks that are appropriate for your situation and with which you feel comfortable saying.

We try to provide a range of comebacks for each situation, so you can find something that fits with your personality. I have one relative who constantly has inappropriate and rude behaviour. I always have a few unsolicited advice comebacks ready for this person to let them know that I couldn't give a toss about what they have to say.

Practice using the comebacks, and then get a relative or close friend to test you on your response and delivery. Say the comebacks until they roll off your tongue. We’ve found it best to be assertive and humorous when talking back, but not angry or reactive which gives the verbal bully energy to feed on or resist.

When using the comebacks, you also need to use some common sense. If you are in a dodgy neighborhood at 11:00 pm, it wouldn't be a wise choice to start mouthing off to someone who looks dangerous.

One thing to be wary of using a comeback at school is that you may be defending yourself, but if you are caught using bad language, you may get called into the principal's office. Some kids and adults are pretty slick and manipulative, even though they are the instigator they will turn around and make you look like the bad guy. Make sure to use a comeback appropriate for the situation; we have a few comebacks that kids can use at school and won’t get in trouble.

The purpose of our comebacks is to be able to verbally defend yourself and change the situation, not to go around assaulting innocent people.

We know that next time someone attacks you verbally, this information when practiced will prepare you to defend yourself.
Have you ever spent time with somebody who gets all wound up over the smallest things? Being around someone who is angry and overreacts can suck the fun out of any situation, you find yourself thinking I didn’t sign up for this.

You expect people of a certain age to be in control of their emotions and act appropriately instead of lashing out at others.

I know someone who sensitive to loud noises, and he gets really angry when people drop things and are noisy. The people who spend time with Darren think he is overreacting, but he thinks he is justified by telling people to be quiet. Darren should put in a pair of earplugs and stop expecting people to cater to his special needs, after all, it’s not like he owns the library or the coffee shop.

Darren is self-employed and often works on his online business in coffee shops and in the workroom/quiet room at the library. Somebody working in the quiet room started typing very loudly, and Darren kept turning around and giving them the evil eye and told the girl to be quiet. For real? Darren, get over yourself!

The comebacks below will let the offender know they need to get their act together and calm down.

What to say to someone who gets angry and overreacts

1. Don’t get your knickers in a knot. Nothing is solved and it only makes you walk funny.
2. Calm down. Take a deep breath and then hold it for about twenty minutes.
3. You can’t control the things that happen to you, but you can control your reaction to them.
4. When shit happens make fertilizer.
5. Every sixty seconds you spend upset is a minute of happiness you’ll never get back.
6. Control your emotion or it will control you.
7. Life is 10% what happens to you and 90% how you react to it.
8. Stop letting people who do so little for you control so much of your mind, feelings and emotions.
9. Chuck it in the f*ck it bucket and move on.
10. Some people create their own storms and then get upset when it rains.
People may have different reasons for being backstabbers; it doesn't really matter. However, when people show you who they are, believe them.

If you want to let the backstabber know that you are on to their two-faced ways, here a few great things to say.

What to say to a backstabber

1. Oh you're talking to me, I thought you only talked behind my back
2. Mean people don't bother me a bit. Mean people who disguise themselves as nice people bother me a WHOLE LOT.
3. When you said you had my back I didn't realize you meant for a place to store your knife.
4. While you were talking about me behind my back, feel free to bend down and kiss my ass.
5. If you don't have the decency to say something to my face, then keep your mouth shut.
6. Grow up or grow a set of balls
7. If you are gonna be two faced, at least make one of them pretty.
8. Don't tell me what they said about me, tell me why they felt so comfortable saying it around you.
9. You're the kind of person who as stabs in the back and then asks why they're bleeding.
10. I'd rather have an enemy who hates me than a friend who secretly puts me down.
11. Oh I'm sorry, did my back hurt your knife?
Top ten comebacks for someone who bad mouths others

It can be awkward if you are hanging out with someone and they start bad mouthing some of your mutual friends. You know the old saying if someone gossips to you they will gossip about you. Try not engage in conversations that tear other people down. You may not feel comfortable saying something back, but at some point, you have to stand up for your friends who aren’t there. If you don’t say something, you will become known as someone who gossips as well.

As Jay Z famously said, “Don’t tell me what was said about me. Tell me why they were so comfortable to say it to you.”

Mandy, who was in high school, had a nasty side and loved to badmouth others and stir up drama. There was a teacher at her high school that she didn’t like because he called her on her bad behaviour in class. She started spreading rumours about her teacher with the other kids, saying that he hit on girls and he had flirted with her, even though it wasn’t true. An evaluation of student safety was sent around to the classes, and she wrote down that this particular teacher made her feel unsafe, even though he had never done anything to her.

Mandy’s bad mouthing caused this teacher to be called in by the school principal, who luckily knew that Mandy was a troublemaker and didn’t take it any further. If the principal hadn’t been switched on, the badmouthing could have negatively affected the teacher’s career.

Use our clever comebacks and leave the person who bad mouths others speechless, let them know it is not OK to talk about people negatively.

Top ten comebacks for people who badmouth others

1. People who talk crap about others will be reincarnated as toilet roll.
2. When you talk so much crap about others I don’t know whether to hand you toilet roll or a breath mint.
3. I can’t respect you if you talk shit about all of the people who you run with.
4. If you go around bad mouthing people behind their back, the risk you run is at some point that they are going to talk to each other.
5. Too bad you can’t count jumping to conclusions and running your mouth as exercise.
6. I hope you don’t choke on all that shit you talk.
7. If you ran like your mouth you’d be in great shape.
8. I believe in freedom of speech but some people need to know when to shut up.
9. Since you love talking shit behind peoples backs so much, you may as well bend down and kiss my ass while you’re down there.
10. You have a bad case of spewing shit from the mouth. I hope you get well soon.
Top ten comebacks for bitchy wives

Your wife might be having a bad or she might have been in a grumpy mood for the last few years.

Bad moods are contagious; you may find that you are in an irritable state after being around your wife when she is having a bitchy episode.

When you have been kind, put in the effort and tried to help her, it can be beyond annoying you’re your wife continues to be miserable and act bitchy towards you.

If you want to let your wife know that you have had enough of mood swings, use one of our snappy comebacks below but be warned if you use one of these comebacks you will probably have to cook your dinner yourself!

Top Ten Sarcastic Comebacks for bitchy Wives

1. Unless your name is Google, stop acting like you know everything.
2. Did someone binge on bitch flakes this morning?
3. No, you’re right, let’s do it the dumbest way possible because it’s easier for you.
4. And you pointing out the obvious is what, helpful?
5. Congratulations on your ability to create drama out of absolutely nothing.
6. I can only please one person per day and today I chose me!
7. Your crazy it showing, you might want to tuck it back in.
8. It must be exhausting being offended by everything.
9. Where’s your off button?
10. Please be patient. I’m fucking things up as fast as I can.
What to say to a blamer

No matter what the circumstances are, there always seems to be people who blame others whenever anything doesn’t go their way. Blamers are incapable of accepting responsibility for their actions or for being part of the problem. The only thing that they seem to be concerned about is condemning someone else and pointing out what they did wrong.

Blamers truly believe that they have never done anything wrong. They see themselves as the victim in the situation, no matter what the reality is, and it is always someone else’s fault. The problem with blaming things outside of yourself is that things can never get better in your life because you need someone else to change before your situation can improve.

Jasmine blamed her parents for her weight problems, as a child they let her eat rubbish food. At 29, Jasmine was in control of the food she shoved into her mouth, but she still blamed her parents for her eating problem, and she couldn’t solve the problem or shed the 50 pounds she needed to lose.

Jasmine needs to be accountable for her actions and eat less, blaming her parents will never lead to actual weight loss.

If you get tired of the blaming behavior, here are some clever comebacks you can say to get your message across loud and clear.

Top ten comebacks for a blamer

1. If everywhere you go there’s a problem.. Guess what?
2. No really, it’s adorable when you blame everyone but yourself.
3. No one is coming to save you. This life of yours is 100% your responsibility.
4. Take responsibility for your actions. You only look like a fool when trying to blame other people for your behaviour.
5. When you blame others you give up your power to grow.
6. Some people create their own storms and then get upset when it rains.
7. If you’re tired of a drama in your life, just quit being the actor.
8. You give yourself credit for your happiness and accomplishments, yet you have a list of people to blame for your bitterness and failures.
9. When people point fingers at others they should remember that they have four fingers pointing back at them.
10. Reap what you sow and own it!
Dealing with annoying people is an inevitable part of life. There will be times you need to stand up for yourself and times when it is better to walk away, after all, you don’t have to attend every argument you are invited to.

Difficult people usually have the same behaviour around other people, not just you. You can start wondering why this is happening to you, but it is their problem, and they probably have many difficult relationships in their life.

If someone is continually bothering you, it is important to set boundaries and let the person know. You can let them know what you find acceptable and what you don’t and what you are not willing to tolerate.

Maya had spent year’s dealing with her negative father who would contradict everything she said and continually make negative judgments about her life. She had learned to stop reacting to the criticisms, but when her father crossed the line, she always had a few one-liners in her pocket to let her dad know his behaviour was not OK.

Here are some snappy comebacks to let the person know that you want to be left alone.

Top ten comebacks for people who keep bothering you

1. Please do not disturb I am disturbed enough already.
2. Please don’t interrupt me while I’m ignoring you.
3. How do I block you in real life?
4. You’re like a hemorrhoid, a pain the ass who won’t go away.
5. If I throw a stick, will you go away?
6. No…you’re not bothering me. In fact, I stopped listening to you about 10 minutes ago!
7. You go girl! And don’t comeback!
8. Don’t think of it as goodbye. Think of it as a chance to stop bothering me.
9. Go away, I’m too sober to deal with you.
10. Please go away I’m introverting.
What to say to someone who doesn’t respect boundaries

Chloe had always had a difficult relationship with her mother who had raised her as a single parent. Her mom, Genevieve, was divorced and didn’t have any intimate relationships and would interfere in Chloe’s life.

Chloe decided to take her older son, Felix, out of after-school care because he didn’t want to go anymore. Chloe and her husband were paying a lot of money monthly for the care, so it made sense to take their son out. The next day, Chloe mentioned to her mother that they were removing Felix from the program. Genevieve said it was a bad idea, went behind Chloe’s back and called up her husband and said, “We need to have a meeting about this. I don’t want my grandson leaving the after school care. Felix is too young at 11 years of age to go home on the bus alone.” Chloe’s husband told Genevieve that the decision had already been made and an email had been sent to remove him from the program.

What was shocking about the situation is that Genevieve actually thought that it was her decision to make, even though she was not her Grandson’s primary caregiver or paying the monthly fee. She was now interfering in Chloe’s parenting decisions and her marriage. Genevieve just could not respect Chloe’s basic boundaries as a person or as an adult.

Have one of the comebacks below ready the next time they cross the line. Remember, what you will allow is what will continue.

Comebacks for someone who won’t respect boundaries

1. No means no, now let it go.
2. I’m sorry you got offended that one time you were treated the way you treat everyone all the time.
3. I know, I know, I stood up for myself, I’m such a bitch.
4. Givers have to set limits because takers rarely do.
5. WHAT part of NO don’t you understand?
6. Please cancel my subscription to your issues.
7. You have a right to your opinion and I have a right to ignore it.
8. I think it’s funny that people who treat you like crap get offended when you do the same to them.
9. Saying yes to happiness means learning to say no to people that stress you out.
10. Your inappropriateness knows no boundaries.
Obviously, it’s not nice to be snarky to dim witted oblivious people.

There are many different kinds of intelligence, someone who is a whiz at math may have no common sense when it comes to everyday life. My friend’s mom only values intelligence if someone has a university degree. It is kind of funny because she thinks that she is superior since she has a BA, yet I don’t think she can think her way out of a paper bag if she tried.

You can’t necessarily choose who you have to deal with on a daily basis but if someone keeps inflicting their point of view or political opinions on you, perhaps you may want to let them know that you have had enough.

Here are ten comebacks for a person who is acting like the village idiot.

Top ten witty comebacks for the not so bright

1. I can’t believe that out of 10,000 sperm, you were the quickest.
2. Somewhere … there is a village being deprived of an idiot!
4. A sharp tongue does not mean you have a keen mind.
5. Thank you. We’re all refreshed and challenged by your unique point of view.
6. You possess a mind not merely twisted, but actually sprained.
7. If you’re gonna be a smart ass, first you have to be smart. Otherwise you’re just an ass.
8. I think you’re acting like yesterday’s coffee, a little weak in the bean!
9. Hey, your village called they want you back by 6 pm.
10. Everyone is entitled to be stupid, but you abuse the privilege.
Some people think they are just proud when in reality they come across as boastful and over the top when they brag about their accomplishments, money or material possessions.

Most braggars are insecure and feel the need to inflate their ego to appear bigger in front of their peers. People who are confident about who they really are don’t feel the need to show off and seek attention, and approval from others.

I saw a humble brag post on Facebook recently. A mom posted her son’s straight-A report card as a post. It was in such bad taste, a report card is a personal matter and sharing it publicly with others is just uncouth. Next, the bragging mom will be sharing her work reviews or yearly bonus on Facebook.

If their bragging exceeds the limit beyond which you can put up with, here are a few snappy comebacks to stop the bragger in their tracks.

What to say to someone who constantly brags

1. Do you ever get off Facebook long enough to live the life you keep bragging about?
2. Why don’t you show more confidence and less arrogance.
3. Being humble shows how confident you are, bragging only shows how insecure you pretend not to be.
4. Wow, I bet you even fart glitter.
5. May your life be as great as you pretend it is on Facebook.
6. No matter how big your car is, how recent your car is, or how big your bank account is our graves will always be the same size. Stay humble.
7. I love hearing you show off.
8. I just want to let you know it’s possible to do X, and not brag about it on Facebook.
9. If you are really good at something you don’t have to brag about it yourself. Other people will do that for you.
10. I call bullshit!
There is nothing worse than a bully; a bully is really a coward, who gangs up with others to torment people. Bullies try to pick innocent victims who have done nothing to deserve the harassment being directed towards them.

Sometimes the bully has a halo effect, even though they are a real jerk the teachers and the school think that they are a great kid. These are the hard ones to catch, like the captain of the football team who has the support of the school and the students.

If you are being bullied, please tell a trusted adult what is going on so they can get you some help. The person you talk to does not have to be your parent, but someone who can help you figure out what to do.

You may feel like you are being left out or picked on at school, but it won’t be like this forever. Great things are ahead for you in the future.

In the meantime, may all the bad karma that bullies inflict on others come back and bite them in the ass.

Top ten comebacks for bullies

1. Too bad you can’t Photoshop your ugly personality.
2. Thank you for your brilliant portrayal of a self centered asshole in the movie of my life.
3. It’s impressive that you’re flexible enough to have your foot in your mouth and head up your ass at the same time.
4. You should really come with a warning label.
5. Breaking news just in: You’re an asshole!
6. I finally got the last knife of the set you’ve been stabbing in my back all these years. Heads up: I re gift.
7. I’m sorry I hurt your feelings when I called you a sociopath. I thought you already knew.
8. Acting like a dick won’t make yours any bigger.
9. Thanks for teaching me how sick and cruel a person can be.
10. Since narcissistic is too big a word for you. How about asshole? Do you understand asshole?
Top ten comebacks for verbal bullies

We all know someone who appears to be your friend, who smiles at you and then delivers a zinger of an insult, leaving you speechless. What’s even worse, is they do it every time you see them, leaving you feeling ambushed once again by a nasty remark.

Jackson was sitting quietly in math class when the class idiot came up, put his arm around his shoulder and called him, "my cabrone." Connor actually meant to say, "my bitch" only his Spanish wasn't so hot, and he ended up saying "my asshole."

Jackson had been embarrassed by Connor before, this time he was ready. He had four comebacks on the top of his tongue, and he said a few in front of the entire class. Everyone cracked up laughing at Connor's expense, and he never bothered Jackson again.

These top ten comebacks for verbal bullies will let the person know that underneath their shiny facade, you know that their comments are truly rotten. Check out some great comebacks now, and you will be armed to talk back next time an idiot makes a mean comment.

Remember it’s not what you say but how you say it, best to deliver these snappy remarks with a smile on your face.

Top ten comebacks for verbal bullies

1. You’re equal opportunity. You’re nasty to everyone!
2. If I wanted to listen to an asshole, I’d fart.
3. You should do some soul-searching. Maybe you’ll find one.
4. Do you always mask insults with humor?
5. You would think with all of your multiple personalities, at least one would be likable!
6. You may die of constipation because you’re so full of shit!
7. Who ate your bowl of sunshine this morning, thundercloud?
8. I’m not saying your stupid, I’m just saying you have bad luck when it comes to thinking.
9. I’m not a proctologist, but I know an asshole when I see one.
10. Before you judge me make sure you Google yourself.
Tiffany had been dating an airline pilot she met at work for two years. Amir was a fun guy, he was always the life of the party, and everybody just loved him. At first, Tiffany had reservations dating someone of another culture, but she took the risk, and she had never been happier. In fact, Amir had kept bringing up the topic of getting married for the last six months.

One day out of the blue, Amir called her up and told her that he was getting married. It was an arranged marriage, and he has been planning the marriage for several months. He was leaving next week for the wedding, and he was going to bring his new bride back to the US.

Tiffany was beyond devastated and felt like a fool in front of all of their work colleagues. If he had known that he was going to have an arranged marriage and had a wife picked out, couldn't he at least have thought to mention it! She was disgusted and betrayed, and could not believe how sneaky and underhanded he was. After two years together, she deserved at least to be told the truth before everything happened.

Nothing can make what the cheater did to you OK. You may want to know why, but try not to drive yourself crazy over thinking everything or blaming yourself.

If you want to take some of your power back, and let the cheater know that they are a total jerk, use one of our clever comebacks below.

Top ten comebacks for cheaters

1. A relationship is built for two. Obviously, you don’t know how to count.
2. Cheating is not an accident. Falling off a bike is an accident. You don’t trip and fall into a vagina.
3. If another woman steals your man, there is no better revenge than letting her keep that bastard.
4. Once a cheater, always a repeater.
5. I used to be fucking stupid. But then I dumped him.
6. I have met some pricks in my time but you sir, are a fucking cactus!
7. Cheating on a good person is like throwing away a diamond and picking up a rock.
8. Eenie meanie miny moe, caught you cheating with a hoe. You lied right to my face, think again you’ve been replaced.
9. People don’t cheat by chance they cheat by choice.
10. I need to be with a guy who ruins my lipstick, not my mascara.
Top ten comebacks for complainers

Do you know someone who always has something to complain about? They go on about the morons they have to work with, their crazy family and of course they are never accountable for being part of the problem. Hell no, it's everyone else's fault!

I don’t know about you, but I don’t want to hear it, I just don’t care. If someone wants to wallow in their misery, they can do it on their own.

Pippa was a very kind person who always invited people who didn’t have family over for the holidays. One of the people she invited was Aunt Bertha, who didn’t have a husband or children of her own. Since her mother passed, Pippa felt obligated to include Bertha in family holidays at her home. Bertha was an extremely negative person, she would complain about everyone and everything. Her tagline was, “I am so angry!” usually followed up by some comment about government or another relative who wasn't acting the way Bertha thought they should behave.

One Thanksgiving, Pippa had a bunch of friends over from Brazil, and the mood was light and joyful. The guests were having fun and laughing. Well, they were until her aunt arrived. As soon as Bertha walked in, she started complaining, “The drive across town was terrible, there was so much traffic.” Followed up with more complaints; the people at the grocery store, the annoying people in Bertha’s apartment building and how she was being taxed too much by the government.

Every time someone started a conversation Bertha shifted the mood in the room, it was as if a dark cloud was now hanging over the party. It was as if Bertha’s complaining sucked all the joy out of the Thanksgiving celebration.

Here are some snappy comebacks that will let the complainer know they need to take their complaints elsewhere.

What to say to someone who constantly complains

1. Stop complaining. Everyone who died yesterday thinks you’re one lucky son of a bitch.
2. I’m sorry I suck at empathizing with your first world problems.
3. Yes, of course, I have time to listen to you complain about all the stupid shit I can neither help you with or do anything about.
4. Spending today complaining about yesterday won’t make tomorrow any better.
5. You should realize that bitching about your first world problem is a first world problem.
6. Thanks for your complaint. I will file it right between “Don’t give a flying f*ck”, and “sucks to be you”.
7. I genuinely care about whatever you have been complaining about for the last hour.
8. I wish I could put some people on mute.
9. I think some people enjoy complaining almost as much as they enjoy doing nothing about it.
10. You’re the stereotype of someone always complaining about stereotypes.
Top ten comebacks for a condescending person

There is nothing worse than being around a condescending person who thinks they are superior to those around them.

Condescending people lack the awareness that they alienate people when they talk down to others and assume people are less intelligent than they are. They offer up unwanted advice and think that they can dictate to others how to something should be done.

A friend of mine had just come back from a trip to Indonesia; he shared with a girl at work how he felt tired and that he had crossed the International Dateline while traveling. His coworker condescendingly replied that he shouldn’t be tired and the international Dateline was only a 12 hour time difference, even though she had never traveled outside of North America and had no idea what she was talking about. Her superiority came across loud and clear.

If you’ve had enough of someone talking down to you, try a few of our snappy comebacks below and let them know that their behaviour is not OK. If you get really lucky, maybe they will move on and bother somebody else.

What to say to a condescending person

1. Your pompous attitude and condescending comments have convinced me that you are smart and very important. Said no one ever.
2. Just cause you look down on everyone doesn’t mean they are looking up to you.
3. Healthy, happy people don’t go around putting people down using negative criticisms and insults.
4. You just show the world how truly insecure and unhappy you are in your own life.
5. Yes, your condescending judgemental comment has completely convinced me to do what you want.
6. I love the new condescending head tilt. Are you trying out a new passive aggressive trick?
7. Being smug and condescending doesn’t make you important. It makes you an asshole.
8. It must be so nice being perfect and by perfect I mean a self-righteous, critical bitch.
9. I love when crazy people think they’ve had the last word and in reality, all you did was let them continue to show off their pompous arrogance. You can’t fix stupid!
10. Hold still while I strangle that condescending demon out of your throat.
Top ten comebacks for controlling people

People who try to control your every move do so because they are insecure. You may be with a controlling person if they constantly criticize everything you do, isolate you from your friends and family, and try to change you while squashing your self-confidence and self-esteem.

I knew a flight attendant whose boyfriend, Dazza, would call her twenty times a day wanting to know her every move. Isabelle had to call him before going out, he wanted to know where she was going and if she didn’t tell him beforehand, he would get very angry. After a couple of years of his controlling behaviour, she received a phone call from another woman, who said that she thought they had the same boyfriend.

Isabelle didn’t think it could be true, she went over to the woman’s house, and there was a picture of her boyfriend and this woman cuddled up, which they took on vacation. There were messages from him on her answering machine saying how much he loved her.

The crazy thing is Dazza was just as controlling with his second girlfriend as he was with Isabelle.

Here are some snappy comebacks to let the controlling person know that you are not interested in being controlled or told what to do.

What to say to a controlling person

1. If I was meant to be controlled I’d come with a remote.
2. You. Cut out that egocentric control bullshit now.
3. I’m sorry that the control freak in you activates the psycho bitch in me.
4. There is nothing wrong with being a control freak if your controlling your words, behaviour and attitude.
5. I’m going to need you to turn down your psycho for just a bit.
6. I find it curious how people who have no self-control and respect for your feelings are the same people who demand self-control for you.
7. Everyone has a right to an opinion, and I have a right not to listen to it.
8. Go find someone else to control because you are not controlling me.
9. When you try to control everything you enjoy nothing.
10. People often forget that it is your own choice of how you want to spend the rest of your life.
They say that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, but when a friend is continually copying you, it can be very aggravating. People may copy your great fashion sense, your ideas, your amazing jokes or even your homework.

If the copycat wants to try to emulate everything you do there is nothing you can do to stop them, after all, it is a free world. You might want to stop sharing what your next move is and distance yourself and stop posting all the intimate details of your life on Instagram.

It can feel like someone is trying to steal what is unique about you. A high self-esteem person doesn’t feel the need to hijack someone else’s identity; they are happy being themselves. Consider yourself lucky that you were born so fabulous that people want to emulate your way of being in the world.

Annabelle was taking an English Lit. class in university; her professor asked students to come up with their own unique perspective about a story that they were studying in class. After a few days, she thought of a unique point of view that would work for the essay.

Annabelle told her roommate about the class and her idea, thinking it was a private conversation. What she didn’t realize is that her roommate would share her idea with her boyfriend. In class she was marked down because two students had written a similar paper, her roommate's boyfriend was a copycat who didn't have any original ideas of his own.

Here are few snappy comebacks to let the person know that you are on to their copycat ways.

What to say to a copycat

1. It’s called originality, you should try it sometime.
2. Thanks for trying so hard to be just like me. I wouldn’t want to be you, either.
3. Be yourself, everyone is already taken.
4. Maybe if you got your own life you wouldn’t fail so miserably to trying to copy mine.
5. You were born an original don’t die a copy.
6. Bitch, don’t copy my style.
7. Be yourself, an original is always worth more than a copy.
8. You can copy me but you can’t be me.
9. You can copy all you want but you’ll always be one step behind.
10. Live up to your own potential instead of copying someone else’s.
If you are out and about and someone sends a couple of insults your way, you may be temporarily lost for words. It is always helpful to have a few great counter comebacks in your tucked away in your mind, so you are ready to battle at any moment.

Comebacks are kind of like verbal warfare, and there is an art form to be able to whip up an awesome, clever response quickly. To deliver an even better insult, you need to possess a quick wit and be pretty damn smart. If you don’t possess those traits, we can help you out.

If you are always picked on for a certain thing like your weight, be prepared with a few comebacks if someone calls you fat. Practice saying the comebacks until they are rolling off your tongue.

If someone slays you with a comeback, here are a few counter comebacks say as a response.

Top ten counter comebacks

1. I can eat alphabet soup and shit out a better reply than that.
2. I’ve heard smarter things from a schizophrenic with Tourette’s.
3. Your death with probably be caused by being sarcastic at the wrong time.
4. Quit trying to be a smart ass when you are just an ass.
5. How long did it take you to come up with that one?
6. No. No. I am listening; it just takes me a moment to process so much stupid information all at once.
7. I bet you were up all night trying to come up that one.
8. You’re like a hemorrhoid, a pain the ass who won’t go away.
9. Your village called. They said they lost their idiot.
10. You’re comeback was so stupid it didn’t even comeback.
Top ten comebacks for someone with double standards

Do you know someone who has double standards and demands that they are treated a certain way, yet they do the complete opposite?

A friend of mine had a teacher who started marking him down once she found out about his political beliefs. Before he revealed who he supported, he would have been given an A for an assignment, and then all of a sudden the teacher would only give him a B or A-. Other students would do way less work and get a higher mark on presentations. Lachlan was a very motivated student, so the experience was very frustrating for him. It got so bad that people even started commenting on Instagram, “I can’t believe you got a B on that project.”

You have to pick your battles in life, and you don’t have to attend every argument you are invited to. You do have the right to say something and stand up for yourself if you are being treated unfairly.

Here are a few great comebacks you can use if you to let the person know that you find their double standards unreasonable.

Top ten comebacks a person who has double standards

1. Why is it acceptable for you to be an idiot but not for me to point it out.
2. Oh, you’re mad at me for doing that, but if you did it that would be OK.
3. The only thing worse than a liar is a liar who is also a hypocrite.
4. Oh, how double standard of you.
5. So what you’re saying is you don’t like me treating you the way you treat me. How interesting.
6. Don’t get mad when I pull a you on you.
7. If you state your opinion it’s free speech, but if I state mine it’s hate and intolerance. Right…
8. No, of course, I don’t think you are a total hypocrite for preaching about the same shit you are guilty of doing…
9. If I treated you the way you treat me you would hate me.
10. I’m sorry, double standards don’t work for me.
What to say to someone who criticizes your dreams

We have all met the dream killer, the person who loves to slam other people’s dreams and goals. The naysayer loves to criticize others, yet they aren’t willing to put themselves out there and take any risks.

Before people become successful, they are always perceived by others as a little crazy. Most people can’t visualize what something will look like; it is outside their concept of reality.

When Karl Benz had his first idea for the motor car, which he called a “horseless carriage” people thought that his dream was insane. Apparently, people couldn’t see any reason that they would ever need a car and they were perfectly happy to travel by horse and buggy.

Benz was criticized for trying to create a motorized vehicle and took his car out at night to test drive it and avoid ridicule, as his car would often break down on the drive. People probably told him to forget about the car and focus on his day job. Looking back, it is easy to see how wrong his critics were.

Your critics can’t see your vision for a brilliant future. Don’t take advice from someone who can’t see your potential and the possibility of your goal.

Here is a top ten list of snappy comebacks that you can use and let the person know that you’re keeping your dream.

Top ten comebacks for someone who criticizes your dream

1. You say I dream too big, I think you think too small.
2. I’m not going to let someone who gave up on their dreams talk me out of mine.
3. People are limited not by their ability but by their vision.
4. If you don’t build your own dreams, someone else will hire you to build theirs.
5. If you dreams don’t scare you, they’re not big enough.
6. Are YOUR excuses more important that your dream?
7. You won’t get anything unless you have the vision to imagine it.
8. People too weak to follow their own dreams will always discourage others from following theirs.
9. Dreams come a size too big so we can grow into them.
10. The only thing worse than being blind is having sight but no vision.
When you have gone through a breakup, it is necessary to cut off communication with your EX to help yourself heal and process the end of the relationship.

For a lot of women, running into your Ex is a nightmare, and it can be overwhelming, and even worse if you are not looking your best.

What are you going to say next time you run into your ex, or he calls you and takes you by surprise? Your heart may start racing or pounding loudly as you hear their voice for the first time in a while.

Not all relationships end well, in fact often things end badly. Whatever happened, running into your Ex can be awkward and make you feel uncomfortable, especially if they treated you poorly.

If you want to let your Ex know that you moved on, you don’t care, use one of our snappy comebacks.

The funny thing is when you treat them mean; sometimes it keeps them keen. Some people are just attracted to people who aren’t available.

Top ten sarcastic relationship comebacks for your Ex

1. I don’t make mistakes I date them.
2. Ex means: thanks for the EXperience, our time has EXpired, now EXit my life.
3. Yes, I’m smiling but you’re not the reason anymore.
4. Relationships are a lot like algebra. Sometimes you look at your ex and wondered why?
5. I’m not really a bitch. I just play one in your life.
6. I would tell you to go fuck yourself but I’m pretty sure you’d be disappointed.
7. My knight in shining armour turned out to be a loser in aluminum foil.
8. Taking your ex back is like going to a garage sale and buying back your own crap!
9. I used to be fucking stupid. But then I dumped him.
10. What I like best about our relationship is your no longer in it.
Dealing with family can drive you crazy and stress you out, especially during the holiday season. You may be staying with your family again for the first time in years, and it can bring up old patterns and behaviours.

Family members know how to push your buttons and wind you up, causing you to react negatively. If you know that your mean aunt Bertha might take a run at you during a family dinner, you may want to have a couple of comebacks ready to make her look foolish for always picking on you.

Here are a few clever things that you can say that won’t ruffle too many feathers.

What to say to crazy family members

1. Every family has one weird relative. If you don’t know who it is, then it’s probably you.
2. Any family tree produces some lemons, some nuts and a few bad apples.
3. Families are like fudge – mostly sweet with a few nuts.
4. They say happiness is having a big, loving, caring, close-knit family in another city.
5. Love the people god gave you because one day he’ll want them back.
6. Is your drama going to have an intermission soon? I need to pee.
7. Just because you’re offended doesn’t mean your right.
8. Relax, we’re all crazy. It isn’t a competition.
9. Getting in an argument with you is like getting arrested. Everything I say, can and will be used against me.
10. Home is where you can say anything you want because nobody listens to you anyway.
11. Our family is just one tent away from a full blown circus!
It's an awful feeling when someone you thought was your friend turns out to be your frenemy. There is nothing worse than having someone who is not on your side who is in your inner circle of friends. As soon as you find out that a frenemy does not have your best interests at heart, stop sharing anything personal immediately.

Kara became friends with a girl who had transferred to her college and didn't know anyone. Being kind, Kara invited the new girl, Lila, to events and parties that her group of friends was attending. After a while, she started noticing that Lila would try to start hanging out with every one of her friends that she introduced her to, without including Kara.

One night Kara found out about a party that Lila was going to via Instagram. When she ran into Lila at Starbucks, she asked if she had plans that evening. Even though Lila had a party planned, she said she had nothing going on and didn’t tell or invite Kara. At that moment, Kara realized that she was a frenemy, not a true friend. Kara was hurt and devastated, but she was just as well done with the friendship.

Don’t waste hours of your time trying to figure out what went wrong in the relationship. There’s a pretty good chance you did nothing wrong, for all you know your frenemy could be jealous of you or feel competitive, or it could be their pattern.

These clever comebacks will let your frenemy know that you know that they are venomous, and are not interested in hearing their snarky insults and offensive comments.

Top ten comebacks for frenemies

1. I’m sorry you got offended that one time you were treated the way you treat everyone all the time.
2. You would be much more likable if it wasn’t for that hole in your mouth that noise comes out of.
3. I never gave you a reason to hate me. You’re just creating your own little drama out of pure insecurity.
4. Some people find fault like there’s a reward for it.
5. I used to think I was overreacting. Now I realize that it was a normal reaction to an abnormal amount of bullshit.

6. The only people I owe my loyalty to are the people who never made me question theirs.

7. I’m sorry that you’re insecure about yourself and you constantly have to worry about every move I’m making.

8. The saddest thing about betrayal is that it never comes from your enemies.

9. Friends are like boobs. Some are big, some are small. Some are real and some are fake.....

10. I would rather have an honest enemy than a fake friend.
We've all met a fake friend, someone who’s nice to your face and then turns around and stabs you in the back. It is hurtful when you see who your friend really is, someone who is only around when it’s convenient for them.

Fake friends expect you to drop everything and cater to their needs, they take advantage of others and don’t have your back.

Shakira was a flight attendant based in the Middle East, who flew long haul around the world. She was happy because she found out she had a four day trip to Bangkok and her boyfriend was going to be working on the same trip. She was looking forward to spending time together since they both flew long-haul it wasn’t something she got to do very often.

She had heard rumours that Adam used drugs but he told her that it wasn’t true. They had a great time out in Bangkok, shopping in Patpong, a night market where a lot of the crew shopped. The flight back to the Middle East was uneventful, when they landed, Adam put his passport carrier bag in her purse and asked her to hold it for him. She didn’t think anything of it. When it was Shakira’s turn to go through crew customs she was pulled away and taken into a room. Customs opened the passport folder Adam had placed in her purse and there, to her surprise, was a large packet of heroin. Shakira was devastated, Adam didn’t care about her at all, he was a fake boyfriend looking for a drug mule.

What happened was devastating for Shakira, she was put in prison in the Middle East for a week. Adam told the police she was guilty, the only thing that saved her was her negative blood test, his blood test was positive for heroin. Finding out that someone close to you is a fake friend can be beyond hurtful and have devastating results.
Here are some great comebacks for the traitor, who only acts as your friend when they want something from you.

Top ten comebacks for fake friends

1. I hope that bus you threw me under swerves and hits you on the sidewalk.
2. I’d rather have an enemy that slaps me in the face than a fake friend who stabs me in the back.
3. Fake friends are like shadows, always there at your brightest moments. But nowhere to be seen during your darkest hours.
4. Revenge, I’m too lazy. I am going to let karma fuck you up.
5. Friends are like boobs. Some are big, some are small. Some are real and some are fake……
6. Some people come into your life as a blessing as others come as life lessons.
7. Enemies are better than fake friends.
8. True friends will always find a way to help you. Fake friends will always find an excuse.
9. Honesty is better than sugar-coated bullshit.
10. If you’re absent during my struggle, don’t expect to be present during my success.
Do you have a friend who gossips about you or other people? It can be beyond hurtful to find out that someone that you thought was a good friend is actually talking about behind your back. Be careful who you trust, if someone will discuss others with you, they will certainly discuss you with others.

We have all been taught we shouldn’t talk about people behind their backs, but some people can’t seem to help themselves and constantly talk negatively about others.

Jared was friends with a girl in high school. He had been warned that Clarissa was a gossip, but he thought she seemed nice. He found out during the summer that she had been spreading rumours that he was gay, even though he had never told her such a thing and he liked girls. Jared realized he could not be friends with such a toxic person and distanced himself from her. He was still in a tennis club with Clarissa, so he couldn’t avoid her completely. He would hear from coaches and others that she had been saying horrible and shocking things about him that weren’t true. The funny thing is that in time, people found who she really was and nobody liked her, she kept repeating the same pattern.

If you get tired of being contaminated by the gossip’s poison and want them to stop, here are a few things you can say to let the gossip know that you don’t want any part of it.

Top ten comebacks for a gossip

1. If you have a problem with me, tell me, not everyone else.
2. It doesn’t bother me that you talk about me behind my back. What bothers me is you don’t get all your facts right.
3. What’s that? You heard a bunch of shit about me from someone who hates me? That shit MUST be true!
4. If it’s not your story to tell don’t tell it.
5. I never judge someone by the opinion of another.
6. If you didn’t hear it with your own ears, or see it with your own eyes. Don’t invent it with your small mind and share it with your big mouth!
7. Rumours, carried by haters, spread by fools and accepted by the ignorant.
8. The crap you heard about me might be true, or it could be as fake as the person who told you.
9. Rumours, I found cut so much about myself didn’t’ even know.
10. If it doesn’t involve you it shouldn’t concern you.
There are haters everywhere, all over all the world. Anytime you step out of your comfort zone and do something 30 percent of people will like it, 30 percent of people won’t like it and 30 percent of folks won’t care. (Who knows what happened to the other 10 percent).

If you are a creator, actor, a musician in a band or someone who is putting any kind of content out into the world you will receive criticism from others. I have experienced this with the web site, people hating on me for what I have created. Dealing with negative feedback gets easier with time, you look at the source and realize they may have something useful to say or their opinion could be a complete waste of time.

When some jerk mouths off, “I hate you!” you can either respond with a comeback or let it go because he might be part of the 30 percent of the hater population.

If you are continually being picked on, you can use a comeback to let the person know that you are not a doormat who can be walked all over. Often after responding with a few comebacks, and making the bully look like a fool, they move on to another target.

Below we have some great comebacks for the haters in this world. Use your comeback and let them know that they can spread their hate elsewhere.

Top ten sarcastic comebacks for haters

1. If I wanted to listen to an asshole I’d fart.
2. I’m an acquired taste. Don’t like me, acquire some taste.
3. Who lit the fuse on your tampon?
4. Acting like a dick won’t make yours any bigger.
5. Your ass must get jealous of all that shit that comes out of your mouth.
6. Grab a straw because you suck.
7. I guess if you spoke your mind, you’d be speechless.
8. Jealousy is a disease. Get well soon bitch.
9. Trash talked by many. Hated by some. Guess how many f*cks I give? It’s less than one.
Top ten snappy comebacks for grumpy husbands

Everybody gets grumpy from time to time, we all have off days. If your husband has been in a continuous bad, sulky mood it can be tiring to be around that kind of energy. Nobody wants to walk around on eggshells to ensure they don’t upset the grump in the living room.

Perhaps your husband is stressed about something and doesn’t like to share his worries. Some men internalize their problems instead of talking to others about what is going on. Some folks like to blame everyone else for their problems instead of accepting their part in the situation.

Is your husband moody with you and nice to everyone else that he comes into contact with? If he is grumpy with you and warm and fuzzy on the phone to friends than you need to have a conversation about what is going on.

Melody’s husband would overreact to little things and spazz about them if he was in a bad mood. If she was having a conversation with him and she made a comment he would get annoyed he was being interrupted. He never got the memo that a conversation is supposed to be like a game of tennis instead of bowling. He never showed this annoying behaviours with anyone outside of his immediate family.

If you get tired of his grumpy attitude, here are a few zingers you can use to let him know. These are best said in a joking way, with a smile. If you’re lucky maybe he’ll even get his own dinner tonight!

Top ten snappy comebacks for grumpy husbands

1. Never laugh at your wife’s choices...you’re one of them.
2. I am not a nag. I am a motivational speaker.
3. Let me know when you are off your man period.
4. I’m sorry we fought. I hate it when you’re wrong.
5. You treat me like your bitch and then you wonder when I act like one.
6. Your dinner is in the recipe book page 22. And the ingredients are at the store.
7. No husband has ever been shot while doing the dishes.
8. Never piss off someone who bleeds for a week a month and doesn’t die.
9. Both of us can’t look good at the same time. It’s either me or the house.
10. Stop nagging me about how much I’m nagging you.
What to say to a hypocrite

Do you have a hypocrite in your life, someone who conveniently forgets their own faults while happily pointing out yours?

Hypocrites have one set of standards for themselves and different standards for you.

A high school girl, Nelly, would continually bad mouth other people stirring up drama within her class. If anyone else talked badly about someone, Nelly would tell them off and say it is wrong to talk about people. The weird thing is she just couldn’t see that she was the worst offender.

These snappy comebacks will let the hypocrite in your life know that you are on to them, and are not interested in putting up with their double standard.

Top ten comebacks for a hypocrite

1. I think it’s funny that the people that treat you like shit get offended when you do the same to them.
2. Well, aren’t you just a shiny little hypocrite polished in bullshit!
3. People in glass houses shouldn't throw stones, they should sit down and shut the F up!
4. You need to get off your high horse and look at yourself first!
5. It’s always the one with the dirty hands pointing the finger.
6. Actions prove who someone is, words just prove who they want to be.
7. No, of course I don’t think you are a total hypocrite for preaching about the same shit you are guilty of doing…
8. The only thing worse than a liar is a liar who is also a hypocrite.
9. If I treated you, the way you treated me, you would hate me.
10. It’s easier to see the wrong in other people’s lives, than in your own life. Don’t judge.
Top ten comebacks for jerks

We have all met a jerk who makes every situation difficult and never realizes that they are the problem. You don’t have to try to win over the haters; after all, you are not the jerk whisperer. Life is way too short to spend your valuable time dealing with jerks. Sometimes a jerk will have it out for you for no reason, they may verbally attack, try to belittle you in public or try to embarrass you.

I went to pick up my nephew from school one day, on the playground was a 40 year old jerk, one of the parents. I had heard about him from others, putting kids down while elevating his own kid to look better.

My nephew was applying to a high school that was challenging to get into at the time. This guy said to him, “Do you really think that you will be in the twenty percent who will actually get accepted?” I just couldn’t believe that an adult could be so unkind to a kid!

If you can get the jerk out of your life do so as soon as possible, don’t waste your precious time thinking about the idiot.

If you get tired of putting up with the jerk and their nasty behavior, here are a few snappy comebacks to let them know they need to back off.

Top ten snappy comebacks for jerks

1. You have the rest of your life to be a jerk, why not take today off?
2. Jesus loves you but everyone thinks you’re a jerk.
3. Oh, I heard you. I just don’t care.
4. Remember that time you shut the f*uck up? Me neither.
5. The jerk store called, they’re running out of you.
6. I would love to insult you but I’m afraid I wouldn’t do as well as nature did.
7. You’re the reason nobody likes you.
8. You’re like a hemorrhoid, a pain the ass who won’t go away.
9. Your dick belongs in your pants, not your personality.
10. I love the sound you make when you shut up.
What to say to a judgmental person

Judgemental people be exhausting to be around, spreading their doubt and fear, criticizing others and their dreams. After spending time with a judgmental person, you can leave questioning your own life choices and direction.

Don’t listen when a limited person projects their opinion about your life. In 1919, Walt Disney was fired from the Kansas City Star because, his editor said, he “lacked imagination and had no good ideas.” If Walt had listened to the editor who fired him, the world wouldn’t have Mickey Mouse or Disney World.

It may seem like a judgemental person is making a judgment about you, what it really is a projection of their own reality, their ability which has absolutely nothing to do with you.

If you ever get tired of the judgemental comments, you can holler some of these snappy comebacks right back at them.

Top Ten Comebacks for Judgmental People

1. It’s so funny how the people who know the least about you, have the most to say.
2. While you were busy judging others, you left your closet door open and a lot of your skeletons fell out.
3. You don’t like me? That’s a shame. I’ll pencil in some time to cry about it later. Right now, I’m busy enjoying my life.
4. Before you judge my life, I suggest you take a good look at your own life.
5. Before you judge me, make sure you’re perfect.
6. If God has a problem with the way I live, let him tell me not you.
7. Don’t judge me. I was born to be awesome…. not perfect.
8. When you judge another you do not define them, it defines who you are.
9. You’re the stereotype of someone always complaining about stereotypes.
10. Don’t judge my path if you haven’t walked my journey.
In every school, there is usually a kid who is the class bully and picks on other kids. Normally, these kids think that they can walk all over everyone and get away with it. They aren’t concerned with other people’s needs or feelings.

Most well-meaning parents tell their child to take the higher road, not to talk back or say anything to the bully, they think that their kid should be the bigger person in the situation. If your child doesn’t say anything back to the kid who has been raised without boundaries or ever hearing the word no, they might think your kid is an easy mark. If your kid doesn’t respond, the class bully thinks that your child will continue to take their taunts, if your child uses a comeback they will move on to someone else who is too afraid to respond.

The one thing you have to be careful of is saying something at school that can make you look like the bad guy and get you in trouble. The comebacks below will help you defend yourself against class bullies, even better, you can use them in front of the teacher or in class without getting called to the principal’s office.

Top ten comebacks kids can use at school

1. Where’s your off button?
2. Unless your name is Google stop acting like you know everything.
3. You should use glue stick instead of Chapstick.
4. I’ve been called worse by better.
5. I don’t hate you, I’m just simply not excited about your existence.
6. If you’re waiting for me to care, you better pack a lunch. It’s gonna be a while.
7. You would be much more likable if it wasn’t for that hole in your mouth that noise comes out of.
8. Is your drama going to have an intermission soon?
9. I make my haters my motivators!
10. If you can’t be kind, then be quiet.
Top Ten comebacks for a know it all

We have all met them, the guy or girl who won’t stop talking offering up unwanted advice and thinks that they know it all. Whatever you say, they know better or claim they done better blah, blah, blah.

There is nothing worse than getting cornered at a party by a know it all, who offers all sorts of unsolicited advice. They discount other people’s comments and suggestions because theirs are better.

Jason attended a Meetup group to meet new people who owned online businesses. He was hoping to meet new people who were at the same level as he was or further along the path.

Jason was introduced to someone at the event who told him that having a blog wouldn’t work, it wasn’t possible to make money from blogs anymore. He laughed to himself because he was making money every day from his blog. He could tell the know it all was argumentative and he didn’t want to waste his energy debating whether or not blogs could make money, so he changed the topic.

If you don’t want to listen to the know it all warble on, try one of our clever comebacks below.

Top ten comebacks for know it alls

1. Unless your name is Google stop acting like you know everything.
2. Since you know it all, you should know when to shut the fk up.
3. You would argue with a fence post.
4. Being right isn’t nearly as important as knowing when to shut up.
5. Rather than us agreeing to disagree why don’t you just be quiet.
6. Try being informed instead of being opinionated.
7. Everything we hear is an opinion not a fact. Everything we see is a perspective not a truth.
8. Open your mind not your mouth.
9. Since you know everything, then you know you’re an asshole.
10. I didn’t realize you were an expert on my life and how I should live it! Continue while I take notes.

Jason shared that it was interested in becoming an Amazon seller. The know it all told him that it would never work, you can’t make money selling on Amazon and don’t even waste your time trying. The funny thing was the know it all didn’t have an online business, and he was acting as if he was an expert on the topic when his results showed otherwise.
Manipulators try to achieve their goals by persuading others to do what they want by indirectly influencing someone else’s behavior or actions to suit their agenda. At first, they may appear to have your best interests at heart, but really it’s all about them.

They know how to find your weaknesses, and once discovered they will continue to use your weaknesses against you. When they have figured out how to get you to do what they want, they will keep exploiting you until you put a stop to it.

A manipulative high school girl was constantly creating drama with friends. Sonja always wanted to be the centre of attention, she would bad mouth other girls in the group behind their backs and turn friends against each other. One day when Sonja wasn’t around, the group started comparing stories and shared horrible things that she had said about every single one of them. They realized she had played and manipulated every single member of the group.

A manipulative person can take a real toll on your life. Here are a few snappy comebacks you can say to let the manipulator know you are on to them.

Top ten comebacks for manipulative people

1. If I was meant to be controlled I’d come with a remote.
2. Sociopath, narcissist, pathological liar, manipulator: I am not calling you names. I am describing you.
3. When karma comes back to punch you in the face, I want to be there in case it needs help.
4. Selfish…delusional… manipulative and hypocritical. OMG, I can’t believe you are still single.
5. Go away, I’m allergic to manipulative people.
6. I’m still trying to decide if you are a sociopath who means well or a master manipulative douchebag.
7. You. Cut out that egocentric manipulative bullshit now.
8. Thanks for reminding me why I don’t feel guilty that I can’t stand you.
9. You should really stop concerning yourself with my business and worry about your horrible personality and petty manipulative ways.
10. Wait, come back. You forgot your bullshit.
Top ten witty comebacks that aren’t mean

1. It’s funny how the people who know me the least have the most to say.
2. And you pointing out the obvious is what, helpful?
3. I’ve been called worse by better.
4. I don’t hate you, I’m just simply not excited about your existence.
5. If you’re waiting for me to care, you better pack a lunch. It’s gonna be a while.
6. Where’s your off button?
7. Judging another person does not define who they are…it defines who you are.
8. Some people should use a glue stick instead of chapstick.
9. Remember when I asked for your opinion. Me neither!
10. I didn’t realize you were an expert on my life and how I should live it. Continue while I take notes.
Every school or office has a few mean girls who are just plain nasty! If you are being picked on by a mean girl, you are not alone, many girls have been picked on at school.

The mean girl thinks she is the Queen Bee and prances around like she owns the place, in charge of everyone and everything. Middle school and high school can be awkward times for teens, who are going through a lot of changes and want to fit in.

Often the mean girl will target someone who she thinks is an easy mark, somebody she thinks won’t respond when she singles them out. Be prepared the next time she tries to embarrass you in front of others and have a comeback ready.

Often when you respond with a comeback, the mean girl will move on to someone else who she thinks is an easier target.

Here is a top ten list of snappy comebacks you can use on mean girls. These comebacks should leave the nasty girl a little startled that someone snapped back.

Top ten sarcastic comebacks for mean girls

1. You have the rest of your life to be a jerk, why not take today off?
2. If you’re waiting for me to care, you better pack a lunch. It’s going to be a while.
3. You know, all the makeup and the clothes can’t change what an ugly person you really are!
4. I hope you choke on all that shit you talk.
5. I’ve been called worse by better.
6. Did your brain take a laxative because there is a lot of shit coming out of your mouth?
7. Is your drama going to have an intermission soon?
8. Who lit the fuse on your tampon?
9. Have a nice day, somewhere else.
10. You should come with a warning label.
Top ten comebacks for mean girls who create drama

Do you have to deal a mean girl who constantly blows things way out of proportion and makes minor things into a big deal? Drama queens react to everything and get pissed off when they don’t get their own way.

A high school teen, Luke, was telling me about a mean drama queen in his class who constantly creates problems for others. Mia lies to her teachers she tries to get other people into trouble and have them sent to the office. She has double standards and gets nasty towards other kids and then plays the victim with the circumstances that she created.

Mia’s family is from China and she claimed she spoke Mandarin several times in class. Luke spent the time to learn a few words in Chinese and went up to her said, “Hi, how are you?” She turned around and told the teacher that Luke racially stereotyped her by speaking to her Mandarin. She then lied and said he swore in Chinese. Luke, who was trying to be nice, was sent to the school counselor and forced to apologize to her.

There is nothing worse than a mean girl with a bunch of followers who can’t think for themselves, and who go around terrorizing others and making their lives miserable.

Some of these mean girls have nothing better to do than sit around and create drama. Talk about first world problems!

Use one of our snappy comebacks next time you encounter a mean drama queen.

Top ten comebacks for mean girls who create drama

1. You don’t like drama? Funny how your name comes up as executive producer on every single episode around you!
2. What else do you do in your spare time other than sit around and think of the past and trying to start drama?
3. You don’t like me? That’s a shame. I’ll pencil in some time to cry about it later. Right now, I’m busy enjoying my life.
4. Congratulations on your ability to create drama out of absolutely nothing.
5. I love when you blame everyone around you for being dramatic and starting problems. However, I see one common denominator, you!
6. Thanks for reminding me why I don’t feel guilty that I can’t stand you.
7. You should really stop concerning yourself with my business and worry about your horrible personality and petty manipulative ways.
8. Is your drama going to have an intermission soon? I’ve got shit to do.
9. Before you judge me, make sure you’re perfect.
10. I didn’t mean to push your buttons. I was just looking for mute.
Top Ten Comebacks for nagging wives and girlfriends

There is no doubt about it, nobody wants to listen to their nagging wife or girlfriend.

Many wives who nag are not even aware that they are nagging everyone around them, they actually think that they are being helpful. Your wife probably believes that if she nags you enough, you might just miraculously change your behaviour.

There is a story about a woman was upset with her husband’s temper. She went to the doctor and explained to the doctor how her husband would lose it and get really angry. The doctor told the woman that anytime she noticed her husband was losing his temper she should grab a glass of water and swish it around in her mouth. The woman went back to the doctor and said it was a miracle, her husband was no longer getting so angry. The woman wanted to know what about the swishing sound calmed her husband down. The doctor explained, “It has nothing to do with the swishing sound, it’s you learning to keep your mouth shut that does the trick.”

Next time your partner is giving you a lecture or a hard time try some of these snappy comebacks. Say them in a joking way so you don’t get yourself into too much trouble!

Top ten comebacks for your nagging wife or girlfriend

1. You’re like a plunger; you keep bringing up old shit.
2. Please be patient. I’m fucking things up as fast as I can.
3. Just because you’re offended doesn’t mean you’re right.
4. You go girl! And don’t comeback!
5. I’m sorry was it my job to fill your life with joy today?
6. No really, it’s adorable when you blame everyone but yourself.
7. Just because you’re a drama queen doesn’t mean I am going to treat you like royalty.
8. I’m going to need you to turn down your psycho a little bit.
9. Getting in an argument with you is like getting arrested. Everything I say, can and will be used against me.
10. No, you’re right, let’s do it the dumbest way possible because it’s easier for you.
What to say to a narcissist

Narcissists can be difficult people to deal with. It’s all about them, all the time, they never think of others. It can be very painful if you have a narcissist in your life who constantly tramples on your feelings.

Valerie’s cousin, Olivia, who lived in Ireland had always been self-centred. Val had secretly thought that she was a narcissist after witnessing really selfish behaviour for years.

Val was going through a really tough time in her personal life, her first serious relationship was over. Her boyfriend, who she lived with, had left her and she found out that he was seeing another woman behind her back. In his belongings, she found an 8 by 11 picture of a woman with a big hook nose, who wrote on the picture to the sweetest man I have ever known. Val was devastated both by the break up and by the betrayal and just could not stop crying.

Her cousin, Olivia, had planned to visit and was meeting a guy she met online in London. When she arrived, Val was still feeling very distraught and could not stop crying that her relationship was over.

Olivia did not have any empathy for Val’s situation and could not understand why she was feeling down and wasn’t super sparkly. Olivia said to Val, “Are you just jealous because I have a date?” Val couldn’t believe that her narcissistic cousin could make the worst moment of her life all about her.

If someone keeps ignoring your feelings and making everything about them, you might want to consider making a few changes in the relationship. Here are a few things to say if you get fed up with the narcissist in your life.

Top ten comebacks for a narcissist

1. If you live your life like everything is about you. You will be left with just that. Just you.
2. I’m not an astronomer but I am pretty sure the earth revolves around the sun and not you.
3. I’m sorry, I forgot I only exist when you want something.
4. Sorry you’re mad that the world doesn’t revolve around you. Let me pour you a tall glass of get over it.
5. Thank you for reminding me of how self centered and hypocritical you are. I had almost forgotten.
7. Your problem is not knowing you’re the problem.
8. There is not a sponge in the world that can rival your self-absorption.
9. Get over yourself, not everyone wants to be you.
10. Oh yes, let’s ignore everything I just said and talk some more about you.
We all know a toxic person; it could be your relative or some idiot in your class who always likes to point out the negative.

Jason was a top student at school and was a very bright guy. His grandfather loved him and meant well, but he had a very small view of the world.

Jason was in the process of making plans to go to university overseas. He really wanted to travel and experience all that life had to offer. His Grandpa could only see the world from his point of view and would make negative remarks every time Jason shared one of his dreams. Grandpa would say things like, “You will never be able to survive in Dublin if you go there by yourself.”

Luckily, Jason didn’t listen to his grandpa and just kept on going and planning for his move to Europe. What we believe we are capable of achieving truly determines our lives. Don’t let the negative remarks from limited people become your reality.

_Whether you think you can, or you think you can’t—you’re right._ — Henry Ford

Here are some great comebacks for the individual who is always giving you unsolicited advice, and making negative remarks. These clever comebacks will let them know that you know that you are not interested in hearing their nasty comments.

Top ten comebacks for people who make negative comments

1. I can always count on you to relentlessly point out the negative.
2. Unless you’re a pregnancy test, take your negativity elsewhere.
3. Your opinion is not my reality.
4. Naysayers gonna naysay!
5. And you pointing out the obvious is helpful?
6. Please tell the negative committee which meets inside your head to sit down and shut up.
7. If you cannot be positive than at least be quiet.
8. A negative mind will never give you a positive life.
9. Keep your miserable ass away from me.
10. The only negativity I want in my life is a pregnancy tests.
Top ten ways to say no

Do you have difficulty saying no to people? Saying no can be challenging, especially when you don’t want to disappoint someone close to you.

Some of us are people pleasers and put other people’s needs ahead of our own. The thing is, if you want to accomplish big things in your life you can’t live your life to accommodate other people’s agendas, you to need to make your life a priority and respect your own time and boundaries.

There are pests who refuse to take no for an answer and keep coming back and trying for a yes. It can be intimidating to say no to the person who asks if you are afraid of confrontation, what you can do is have a few great comebacks ready to say no, so you are prepared next time you are asked to do something you don’t want to do.

Jack was working with Raoul on a university project. They planned to work remotely to get the project written up and finished. On the day they planned to work, Raoul did not respond to texts or phone calls, until 10 p.m. He called up Jack and started dictating what he needed to do on the project all night, even though he had done nothing all day.

Jack knew that this was how Raoul rolled, and he had enough of doing all of the work on the project. When Raoul called that night, Jack had five ways to say no planned out and told him in that he was not going to do his work for him.

Here are a few fun ways to say “No” that should get your point across.

Awesome ways to say no to someone

1. No means no now let it go.
2. I never do X on days that end in “Y.”
3. I would rather stick needles in my eyes. Or your eyes.
4. What part of the word no do you not understand?
5. A yes would be the slow withering death of my soul.
6. I’m trying to see how long I can go without saying yes.
7. No, I’m staying home to work on my cottage cheese sculpture.
8. I no longer do things that make me want to kill myself.
9. I’d rather remove my own gallbladder with an oyster fork.
10. Hell, no!
Nosiness and gossiping seem to go together; some people find power in knowing something that others don’t know.

All of us have information that we don’t feel comfortable sharing with others; nosy people just don’t get the hint and keep trying to pry information out of you. Some folks like to ask some personal questions about who you are dating, if you a virgin or how much money you earn.

You don’t have to reveal the personal details of your life to the office gossip or your family; you have the right to set some personal boundaries and keep parts of your life private.

If someone in your life crosses the line too many times, and won’t keep their nose out of your business here are a few sarcastic zingers. Maybe you will get lucky, and they will mind their own business!

Top ten sarcastic comebacks for nosy people

1. Hey, I found your nose, it’s in my business again!
2. Remember when I asked for your opinion? Me neither.
3. Oh I didn’t tell you. It must have been none of your business then.
4. My life, my mistakes, my choices. Not your business!
5. My business isn’t your business. Unless you’re my thong, don’t be up my ass.
6. If you are going to have opinions about my life then I can assume you will be paying some of my bills.
7. Oh, I didn’t realize you were an expert on my life. Continue while I take notes.
8. It’s better to have your nose in a book than someone else’s business.
9. It’s an odd thing how some people have to be all up in your business, kind of like a wedgie. Now that’s some bad crack.
10. Mind your own problems before you talk about mine.
As soon as Savannah arrived at her old friend's house, she had a rude attitude towards everyone. She proceeded to insult the pie that Eden had made from scratch saying it was terrible. The rest of the time she just sat on her phone and ignored everyone in the group. She then stood up and said, "We should go this is really boring." The host family all just stared in shock, their lower jaw hanging open.

Some people are not worth the effort! When you clean your house, cook for someone and welcome them into your home, you don’t expect to be insulted. When you are witnessing a shockingly bad behaviour, you may decide that some people are just not the kind of people you want to spend time with.

If you have had enough, here are a few snappy comebacks to get your point across.

Top ten comebacks for obnoxious people

1. Some people just lack the ability to realize that everyone in the room wants them to shut up.
2. Is there an app I can download to make you go away?
3. The level of your obnoxious is obnoxious.
4. You should introduce your lower lip to your upper lip sometime and shut up!
5. How do I block you in real life?
6. You sir are the human version of period cramps.
7. There are several people in this world that I find unbearably obnoxious, and you are all of them.
8. I like the noise you make when you shut up.
9. It is impressive that you are flexible enough to have your foot in your mouth and your head up your ass.
10. Damn bitch. Are you a smoke detector cause you are really loud and annoying.
What to say to someone who gets offended easily

Have you ever met anyone who seems to be offended by every little thing? Being around someone who is easily offended is beyond annoying and can take the joy out of any social situation. It feels like you are dealing with someone with the emotional age of a toddler, who can tantrum at any moment.

People who are easily offended blame other people for their emotions instead of taking responsibility for how they feel. Instead, they play the victim card. If you live in a constant loop trying to catch other people doing something wrong, you will find yourself in a pretty miserable state of mind.

There seems to be a new breed of people who are offended by everything; they grew up receiving participation trophies and constant feedback on how wonderful and amazing they are. This same group can’t take feedback, and if someone disagrees with their point of view, they melt down. Having a meltdown or getting offended every time someone has a different point of view from your own makes it impossible to have a discussion.

If you get fed up with someone trying to control your language and speech and acting like they are superior and PC (politically correct), here are a few things you can say.

What to say to someone who gets offended easily

1. It must be exhausting getting offended by everything.
2. I would like to apologize to anyone I haven’t offended. I am sure I will get to you shortly.
3. Sorry for the mean accurate things I said.
4. You find it offensive. That’s funny. That’s why I am happier than you.
5. I’m offended by how easily you’re offended!
6. In time, I’m sure I’ll offend everyone I know.
7. Oh, I offended you with my opinion, you should see the ones I keep to myself.
8. Announcing "I’m offended" is basically telling the world you can’t control your own emotions, so everyone else should do it for you.
9. Just because you’re offended, doesn’t mean you’re right.
10. I didn't mean to offend you… that was just a bonus.
Here is a top ten list of snappy comebacks that you can use in most situations, from surviving a family dinner with your annoying relatives to pushing back on your obnoxious coworker. These comebacks are light enough that the person will still be speaking to you afterward, yet give you peace of mind as you "judo" their comment back to them. Try to say these in a joking way, with a smile on your face.

Top ten witty comebacks for all occasions

1. You are like a candy bar: half sweet and half nuts.
2. Your inappropriateness knows no boundaries.
3. I'm sorry but I didn't order a glass of your opinion.
4. I'd rather be X than be you.
5. I refuse to engage in a battle of wits with an unarmed person!
6. There are 7 trillion nerves in the human body, and you are capable of getting on every one of them.
7. If you're going to be close minded… do you mind being closed mouthed as well?
8. Some people are like clouds. When they disappear it's a brighter day.
9. Where's your off button?
10. If I give you a nice big straw will you go suck the fun out of someone else's day?
Top ten comebacks for your parents

Parents can drive you crazy no matter how old you are! Whether you are 16 or 46 nobody likes to be lectured, nagged or told what to do.

In the age of the helicopter parent, it may seem like your folks may be hovering around with an excessive interest in your life.

Sometimes it seems like you can’t win with your parents no matter what you do. They complain about what you don’t do, and then when you do it, they complain about the way you did it.

Of course, your parents love and worry about you, which is why they display these annoying behaviours.

Next time your mom or dad gives you a lecture or a hard time try some of these funny comebacks. Say them in a joking way, so you don’t get yourself into too much trouble!

Top ten comebacks for your parents

1. You call it talking back. I call it explaining.
2. I’m a liar? You were the one who told me about the tooth fairy, the Easter bunny and Santa!
3. You say I’m lazy, I’m just on energy-saving mode.
4. Getting in an argument with you is like getting arrested. Everything I say, can and will be used against me.
5. Remember when I asked for your opinion. Me neither!
6. My room isn’t dirty, I just have everything on display.
7. I know money doesn’t grow on trees. That’s why I’m asking you.
8. I don’t have an attitude problem, you have a perception problem.
9. You’re one of my favorite parents
10. Those who criticize our generation forget who raised it.
Top ten comebacks for someone who pisses you off

Do you have someone in your life who continually seems to piss off everyone around them? Maybe somebody who doesn’t care about other people’s feelings, or always acts like a jerk and loves to stir up drama.

Dealing with such a toxic individual can be exhausting, challenging and is a complete waste of your energy. Life is short, try not to waste your time and energy on people who are constantly creating problems.

Gavin was in science class and the students were partnering up for a science fair project. Before he could find someone else to partner with, Reed cornered him and asked to be his partner.

Reed was a very hard individual to like and was in need of an attitude adjustment. He wouldn’t do the work that he was assigned to do on the project, but he would edit Gavin’s work, even though he had poor English. He thought he was superior to others and would walk into the school in front of people he was walking with, he talked down to others as if he was intellectually superior.

Reed was a basically a turd, but he was a toxic turd that Gavin had to work with to get a good mark on the science fair. Gavin decided that he didn’t want to just win the battle he wanted to win the war. When Reed acted like a turkey he would say things like, “Did you mean to be so rude?” Once the group project was over, Gavin distanced himself from Reed and refused to partner with him again.

If you have had enough of somebody’s annoying behaviour, and you are tired of the disrespect, try one of our great comebacks below.

Top ten comebacks for someone who pisses you off

1. Thank you for making me so angry that every time I open my mouth it appears I have Tourette’s syndrome.
2. The people who tolerate you on a daily basis are the real heroes.
3. You are multi-talented. You can talk, annoying and irritate me all at the same time!
4. I didn’t mean to push your buttons. I was just looking for mute.
Top Ten Comebacks for someone who posses you off continued

5. Revenge is not in my plans… You’ll fuck yourself on your own.
6. If you are going to be a turd go lay in the yard.
7. Sometimes I look at you and wonder… Why you no one has hit you with a brick.
8. I am 97 percent sure you don’t like me. But I am a 100 percent sure I don’t care.
9. Did your brain take a laxative because there is a lot of shit coming out of your mouth?
10. Just knowing that I have successfully pissed you off again, makes my day.
We’ve all met the pushy person who keeps coming at you and won’t back off. Pushy people often miss social cues and are overly assertive about what they want, invading the personal boundaries of those around them. Pushy people can be exasperating and exhausting to be around.

People who badly want something can be relentless. A family friend’s teenager kept demanding that his family send him on a trip to Europe with his grandma. Even though his parents had sent him on two school trips, plus a US trip the previous year, he was obsessed with going to Europe and wouldn’t stop hounding his parents to pay for the trip.

Desperately needing a trip to Europe is definitely a first world problem. Tired of their son’s demanding and pushy ways, his parents told him that they would only pay if he raised $1,000 of the money himself.

You have no obligation to fulfill other people’s demands. When someone can’t respect your personal boundaries, you may need to take a break from the person for a while.

If the pushy individual doesn’t get the hint, here are some snappy comebacks you can use on to get your point across.

Top ten comebacks for pushy people

1. What part of NO do you not understand?
2. I never do X on days that end in “Y.”
3. No means no, now let it go.
4. You go girl! And don’t comeback!
5. Hey, I found your nose. It was in my business again.
6. Does your X pay you some sort of recruiting bonus or are you just this pushy normally?
7. Did you mean to be so pushy?
8. There will always be some that don’t understand the word “no.”
9. Thanks for your two cents but I’ll give you a quarter to shut up.
10. And now I’ll do what’s best for me.
Well, there is justice in this world because Janice got fired, and her sorry ass was laid off from the company. They finally figured out why there was so much staff turnover when the CEO brought in a friend to work for him and he shared what had been going on. Being condescending, putting others down didn’t end well for Janice, karma turned around and kicked her in the ass.

If you get tired of someone trying to put you down and bring you down, here are some clever comebacks to let them know they need to back off.

Top ten comebacks for put downs

1. I don’t understand people who hate their lives enough to criticize everyone around…but not enough to fix their own.
2. You only feel like extinguishing my fire because you are unable to light a match and start your own.
3. Some people will always have something to say and nothing to contribute.
4. Why don’t you try and fix yourself instead of trying to break me?
5. Just because you’ve chosen a label for me doesn’t mean I’ve chosen to wear it.
6. You know, all the makeup and the clothes can’t change what an ugly person you really are!
7. Happy, secure people have no need to put others down.
8. Know what’s funny? Not you, so shut up!
9. Please cancel my subscription; I have had enough of your issues.
10. Bitch, please you’ve got more issues than Vogue.
We have all seen them, bratty kids, whose parents will not step up and tell their kid to behave. It is not the child’s fault, they are too young to understand or have not been taught how to behave.

Parents need to teach their kids to respect other people’s space and boundaries. We live in a civilized society but you wouldn’t know it when you see how some kids behave with they are out and about.

A mother I know was at the park, Jules ran into another family who attended the same school as her kids. The mother was really nice, she had a good professional job and seemed switched on until it came to her kids. Two of her kids were throwing rocks at a toddler, she saw it and did nothing to stop their behaviour. Jules finally said, “Aren’t you going to tell them to stop throwing rocks?” The children were being taught by their parents that it was OK to behave like savages.

Here is a top ten list of snappy comebacks that you can use on parents of rude children. These comebacks are light enough that the person will still be speaking to you afterward. Best to say these comebacks these in a joking way, with a smile on your face.

Top ten comebacks for parents of rude children

1. Do not handicap your children by making their lives too easy.
2. If Helen Keller could be taught manners, what’s wrong with your kids?
3. When I was I kid, we didn’t have behavioral disorders. It was called being a brat.
4. Your kid makes me want to OD on birth control.
5. Call me when your kids have grown and you’re an empty nester.
6. I’m sorry your kids were born normal but have been turned into brats by bad parenting.
7. Spare the rod and end up with a spoiled brat with a sense of entitlement that demands instant gratification.
8. Your kid is NOT tired or hungry. Your kid is a little brat and you’re responsible.
9. You should quarantine the kids to their bedrooms…they have obviously been infected by the ‘brat’ virus.
10. Everyone talks about leaving a better planet for the kids. Let’s try to leave better kids for our planet.
If you are dealing with critics and haters, try not to listen. Don’t shrink your greatness; you can’t control what other people think or say about you. Whatever you do someone will judge you for it, 30 percent will love it, 30 percent will hate it, and 30 percent won’t care. Try your best not to take it personally, have as little interaction with the hater as you possibly can.

No matter what you do someone is going to judge you for it, you could be the most beautiful person on the planet, and someone will call you unattractive. Some people just sit on the sidelines of life criticizing other people, yet they have nothing to contribute to the world.

What you can control is what you do every day towards reaching your goals, keep following your unique path and journey. Make your hater your motivator.

Be the best you can be in your life and just keep going. The hater will probably complain and hate on someone else next week.

If people are giving you a hard time, try one of our rudest comebacks ever to shut them up.

4. Yep, no doubt about it, your father should have pulled out earlier.
5. I swear some men were conceived by anal sex. There is no way being that much of an asshole is natural.
6. I’m not a proctologist but I sure know an asshole when I see one.
7. I hear there’s a new app called a sense of humour. Download it bitch!
8. You’re like a plunger, you like bringing up old shit.
9. I don’t sugarcoat shit, I’m not Willy Wonka.
10. Acting like a dick won’t make yours any bigger.
Urban Dictionary defines savage as, “someone who does not care about the consequences of his or her actions.” Usually the savage will do things that make other people say, “What the f*ck are you crazy?” It has been overused to mean other things but this is the original meaning.

“Mike Tyson is a straight up Savage.” Urban dictionary

Now I am certainly not telling you to act like a savage and run around and bit people’s ear’s off like Mike Tyson. If someone has been cruel and nasty and you have had enough, and you need a comeback that will shut the person up once and for all, look no further.

These comebacks you wouldn't want to use every day, these are reserved for really nasty people.

Top ten savage comebacks

2. Oh yes, ignore everything I just said, let’s make it all about you.
3. You must be exhausted from talking about yourself all day.
4. You’re like a bag of Pampers, self absorbed and full of shit.
5. Funny, I just got back from the centre of the universe and I didn’t’ see you anywhere.
6. Please tell me less about yourself.
7. My status is not about you. I do have other things going on in my life.
8. Sorry you just found out the universe doesn't revolve around you. Let me pour you a tall glass of get over it.
9. Oh, I'm sorry I forgot I only exist when you need something.
10. Get over yourself, not everyone wants to be you.
Are you ever overwhelmed with the urge to tell someone to shut up? Some chatty people engage in genuine conversations which is fine, but non-stop talkers who talk at you are frustrating and exhausting.

Some people monopolize conversations, stopping anyone else from getting a word in. Often, the conversation hog doesn’t get to the point or goes off on tangents driving their listeners crazy. The funny thing is that they don’t even notice that they have lost their audience.

If you can’t take it anymore, here are a few things you can say to let the windbag know that you have had enough.

What to say to someone who won’t shut up

1. Some people just lack the ability to realize that everyone in the room wants them to shut up.
2. You sound so sexy, when you’re not talking.
3. You would be much more likable if it wasn’t for that hole in your mouth that noise comes out of.
4. You know what’s funny. Not you, so shut up.
5. It’s never too late to shut up and mind your own business.
6. I love the sound you make when you shut up.
7. If I wanted to listen to an asshole I’d fart.
8. It’s time to shut up. If I wanted your opinion all of the time I would have married you.
9. In case you didn’t see the look I just gave you. Shut up!
10. Remember that time you shut up? Me neither.
Top ten comebacks for rude strangers

If you are out in public minding your own business, trying to get on with your life, it can be a little surprising to have somebody you don't know verbally assault you.

One day I was at the supermarket peacefully waiting in line minding my own business. I had gone into the store to get change so that I could make a donation, and I need to break a twenty dollar bill. I realized if I purchased one of the items I had then I wouldn’t have enough change left over. So I put something in an empty cart that an employee could return later, I was running late and didn’t have time to return the item myself.

The guy behind me in line started going ballistic. He said, “You are just too lazy to return that item.” I said nicely, “Why don’t you live your life and I will live mine.” The guy then started verbally abusing me in front of a long line of people. After initially being polite I had enough, I said to the guy, “if I wanted to listen to an asshole, I’d fart.” You should have seen the look on the guys face; he was shocked that someone responded and verbally slayed him. He quickly shut up and didn’t say another word.

You want to tell a verbal stranger where to go, but you don’t want to instigate a huge argument that won’t end well. You never know how someone is going to react. Here are a few comebacks to let the person know that they are a jerk, without turning them into a crazed revengeful lunatic.

What to say to a rude stranger

1. Did you mean to be so rude?
2. I hope your day is as pleasant as you are.
3. You would be much more likeable if it wasn't for that hole in your mouth that noise comes out of.
4. I wish I could put some people on mute.
5. Is your drama going to have an intermission soon?
6. If I wanted to listen to an asshole I’d fart.
7. You would argue with a fence post.
8. Have a nice day, somewhere else.
9. Really, you know what that sounds like? Not my problem!
10. Try being informed instead of being opinionated.
Top ten comebacks for people talking behind your back

Candace was shocked to find out that her close friend had been complaining about her to others. She had been friends with Maria since elementary school, and she had known that she would gossip about people, but she didn’t think she would gossip about one of her best friends.

Candace didn’t believe that Maria had betrayed her at first until another close friend showed her the text of what she had been saying. Maria also shared with a mutual friend that Candace was considering ending her relationship with her boyfriend, and she was worried the entire school would find out and she felt depressed and stressed out.

Here is a list of top ten comebacks you can use to let the person who talks behind your back know if they have something to say, they should say it to your face.

Top ten sarcastic comebacks for people who talk behind your back

2. My back is not a voicemail, say it to my face.
3. I don’t worry about those who talk behind my back. They are behind me for a reason.
4. If you have a problem with me call me. If you don’t have my number you don’t know me well enough to have a problem.
5. If you are talking behind my back clearly my life is more interesting than yours.
6. If you have a problem with me, don’t talk to me. Problem solved.
7. I’d rather have an enemy that slaps me in the face than a fake friend who stabs me in the back.
8. There is only one thing in life worse than being talked about, and that’s not being talked about.
9. I pay no mind to those who talk behind your back, it just means I’m two steps ahead.
10. It doesn’t bother me that you talk about me behind my back. What pisses me off is you don’t get all the facts right!
Do you have a wisecracking, smart ass, teenager living in your household? Most teenagers go through a stage where they show a lack of gratitude for everything that their parents do for them.

When a friends' son is complaining about his life and how hard done by he is, his mom tells him that he needs to go on an exchange to Bangladesh and have a wake-up call. Enough with all of the first world problems!

If you ever get tired of your teenager whining and complaining, here are a few great comebacks that will stop your teen in their tracks next time they get out of line.

Top ten sarcastic comebacks for smart ass teenagers

1. Sorry, the lifestyle you ordered is currently out of stock!
2. Stop being harassed by your stupid parents! Move out, get a job, pay your bills while you still know everything!
3. I am not a nag. I am a motivational speaker.
4. If you think I’m mean, it means I am doing my job as mom. If I was nice you could call me Grandma.
5. Would you like some cheese with that whine?
6. No really, it's adorable when you blame everyone but yourself.

8. Sorry you’re mad because the world doesn’t revolve around you. Let me pour you a tall glass of get over it.
9. You become like the five people you spend the most time with. Chose carefully.
10. I’m sorry, I don’t speak Whinese.
Tim had his very bright daughter in public school, and they were very happy with the situation. The other dad, Colin, put his daughter in a private school and kept going on and about how great it was. He knew that Tim’s girl was in public school, but he said, “Public school would be OK if my daughter wanted to be a waitress.”

Tim didn’t want to be unkind about another child, but he took solace knowing that Colin’s daughter was an uncoordinated dumpling.

If you want to say something to a toxic jerk, these clever comebacks will let them know that you know that they are venomous, and are not interested in hearing their offensive comments.

Top ten comebacks for toxic people

3. Getting in an argument with you is like getting arrested. Everything I say, can and will be used against me.
4. I’m sorry but I didn’t order a glass of your opinion.
5. Life’s too short to spend time with people who suck the happiness out of you.
6. Thanks, but I function better without unsolicited advice.
7. I didn’t realize you were an expert on my life and how I should live it. Continue while I take notes.
8. Before you start pointing fingers make sure your hands are clean.
9. The problem with closed minded people is their mouth is always open.
10. Counting other people’s sins does not make you a saint.
Top ten comebacks for troublemakers

Have you ever had to deal with someone who is manipulative and loves to cause trouble? Every office or school has a troublemaker and causing drama is their unique calling. Having to deal with a troublemaker can make you not want to attend an event, work or go to school.

Troublemakers like to stir up controversy by spreading gossip and starting rumors about people, then they turn around and act all innocent claiming they were only trying to help the situation.

Here are a few snappy comebacks to let the troublemaker know you are onto them and their manipulative behaviour.

What to say to a troublemaker

1. Congratulations on your ability to create drama out of absolutely nothing.
2. Don’t tell me what they said about me, tell me why they were so comfortable saying it around you.
3. I see you brought your extra large spoon to stir up trouble.
4. You don’t like drama? Funny how your name comes up as executive producer on every single episode around you!
5. I am returning your nose. I found it in my business.
6. Stop creating a drama and then complaining about it.
7. It is a actually pretty easy not to be a shitty human being. Try it sometime.
8. So, let me get this straight, you talk shit about me then you make it into MY problem when I say something.
9. If drama follows you wherever you go. Maybe you are the drama.
10. I hope one day you choke on all the shit you talk.
Freya had an amazing opportunity to take a job-based in Dubai. She had dreamed of going overseas for a long time, and when a job came up in communications she thought that it was time, she was going to try and make it happen.

When Freya told friends that she planned to move to the Middle East they just couldn’t see the amazing opportunity.

Here are a few snappy comebacks that will let the meddler know that you don’t want to hear what they have to say in the future.

What to say to someone who gives unsolicited advice

1. Thank you kindly for the unsolicited advice. You obviously know so much more about my life that I do.
2. Unsolicited advice is like somebody singing out of tune. Nobody wants to hear it.
3. I don’t base my decisions on advice from people who don’t have to deal with the results.
4. I didn’t realize you were an expert of my life and how I should live it! Continue well I take notes.
5. Don’t judge a situation you’ve never been in.
6. Thanks but I’m an expert in my life.
7. Have more than you show and speak less than you know.
8. Unsolicited advice is the junk mail of life.
9. I’m sorry I offended you by ignoring the unsolicited advice that you shoved down my throat.
10. I’m sorry, I didn’t order a glass of your opinion.
As a parent of a difficult child, you can feel the judgment of others, and you may even feel ostracized by other moms.

Some folks think you need to discipline your child more when you might be dealing with things like autism or other medical conditions.

If you have had enough next time someone gives you unsolicited parenting advice, here are a few snappy comebacks that you can use.

Top ten comebacks for unsolicited parenting advice

1. Thanks for the unsolicited advice about how to raise my teen. Call me when you actually have one.
2. Just because you raised a kid doesn’t mean you should be giving parenting advice….
3. When did you get a PHD in parenting?
4. Next time I need an unsolicited and uninformed opinion I will know where to go.
5. I love unsolicited parenting advice, especially when it comes from someone who doesn’t have children!
6. If your kids didn’t eat bugs, or grunt himself into oblivion, I would probably take your parenting advice more seriously.
7. Unless your name is Google stop acting like you know everything.
8. Unsolicited advice is like somebody singing out of tune. Nobody wants to hear it.
9. I don’t base my decisions on advice from people who don’t have to deal with the results.
10. I didn’t realize you were an expert on my life and how I should live it! Continue while I take notes.

Raising children isn’t for the faint of heart, making an 18-year commitment to emotionally support a child is not something that everyone has the strength to do.

For some reason, strangers feel comfortable making particularly outrageous comments to moms about their kids and parenting skills. It seems like no mother is immune from these intruders, who offer up their unwanted parenting advice to their unsuspecting victims?

When you become a parent, you don’t have a say in who you will parent, you have no idea who you will be moving in with for the next 18 years. Your child might go through a stage of throwing wild tantrums or be a model child.

I have a friend who has two kids, when one of her girls was younger she used to have wild tantrums, up to twenty a day. People who didn’t have difficult children acted as if they were almost morally superior to my friend.

As a parent of a difficult child, you can feel the judgment of others, and you may even feel ostracized by other moms.

Some folks think you need to discipline your child more when you might be dealing with things like autism or other medical conditions.

If you have had enough next time someone gives you unsolicited parenting advice, here are a few snappy comebacks that you can use.
Top ten comebacks for someone who plays the victim

We’ve all met the person who plays the victim, they love to waffle on about their woes and how they’ve been mistreated by the world.

Victims never accept responsibility for their own actions, even when they were the person who started the drama and continued to stir the pot. They refuse to believe that their behaviour is contributing to the negative results that they are getting in their life.

Being close to a victim can be emotionally draining, they gravitate towards people who are nurturing, who will listen like a therapist and be their personal cheerleader.

Bad stuff happens to all of us, you may have had a parent die, been a victim of a crime or have been laid off, which are all out of your control. You are not responsible for the situation, all you can control is how you respond to the event.

We have a choice to play the victim or stand up and face our challenges

Most people in Liz Murray’s circumstances would have played the victim card, both her parents were heroin addicts. Growing up in poverty in New York City, she had to steal food to eat, she was constantly dirty and had head lice. The kids at school bullied her relentlessly, as a result, she started skipping classes and then dropped out of school altogether. To top it all off, when she was 15, her mother passed away from AIDS. Liz’s father couldn’t pay the rent and Liz became homeless and lived on trains. One day she made the decision to turn her life around and completed 4 years of high school in 2 years. Liz then went on to win a scholarship to Harvard University and went from homeless to Harvard. We all have circumstances in our life that suck, we also have a choice how we deal with things.

Next time someone acts like a victim, use one of our great comebacks and let the person know they can't play you.

What to say to someone who always claims to be the victim

1. You can stop playing the victim now, everyone bought it.
2. You play the victim so well you should carry around your own body chalk.
3. I think it is funny how you are still playing the victim and blaming others for things not going your way. When it’s your bad choices that got you where you are. Grow up!
4. You can only play the victim card so many times before people figure out that you’re the problem.
5. If everywhere you go there’s a problem, guess what?
6. The victim costume doesn’t suit you at all. You should try the self-centred ass one again.
7. Some people try to make other people feel responsible for the way they feel. The victim look isn’t pretty.
8. No No, don’t stop. I love all of your stories of how you are always the victim and everyone else picks on you.
9. Some people create their own storms and then get upset when it rains.
10. Oh sorry, I didn’t realize that you’re the victim. I thought you were the one that started all of the drama. My mistake.
